TERAHERTZ CARE CLASSIC

Terahertz (THz) care refers to the use of terahertz radiation, a type of electromagnetic radiation between infrared and millimeter waves, for therapeutic and diagnostic purposes. It's a relatively new field, but research suggests THz waves may have various biological effects and applications in healthcare, including potentially for treating and diagnosing conditions like head and neck diseases.

TERAHERTZ CARE CLASSIC

What is Terahertz Radiation?

THz radiation falls within the electromagnetic spectrum, a region between infrared and millimeter waves. It's non-ionizing, meaning it doesn't carry enough energy to damage DNA or other cellular components, making it considered safe at low powers.
